THE flags were out in the village all the way along High Steet and Market Place and though St Peter's Feast Day may have been rainy and wet, (not like these sunny picture taken by Anne Leitch before the day) it didn't dampen the spirits of those who visited the stalls in the church grounds and attended the church services, to mark our local celebrations.

THE Department for Education and Skills (DfES) has announced that Helen Cairns, a teacher at the Chalfonts Community College, has won the TDA Award for Outstanding New Teacher of the Year in the Southern Region category of the DfES Teaching Awards 2007.

Helen has worked at the Chalfonts Community College for three years, her outstanding skills enabling her rise to be head of Religious Education and Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE), as well as a respected form tutor. Her lessons are lively, challenging and engaging, incorporating topical items and issues on television – ongoing events the students can relate to and understand. Visitors are often invited to give talks on areas such as fire safety, breast and testicular cancer, cultural awareness and drugs.

Helen is respected for her sympathetic and mature approach, which enables her to assist many individual students and parents. One student who felt unable to go to school was helped, with Helen's support, to return to the classroom. A parent found Helen's help and assistance to be invaluable, when going through a difficult time. This support was summed up by a student who explained that problems aren't pushed to one side, but rather Helen discusses ways to solve them and they feel empowered by this.

Helen was nominated for this award by Sue Tanner, Headteacher at the Chalfonts Community College, who recognised Helen's outstanding skills in raising the profile of PSHE, not only in the classroom but in arranging whole-school initiatives, such as a Healthy Schools Audit, Enterprise Days for 8-13 year-olds, a World Challenge expedition to Ecuador, and organising fundraising activities including Strictly Come Chalfonts, a dance competition for staff.

A passion for PSHE was the reason Helen wanted to teach, believing the skills and values raised in PSHE are fundamental to every child's development. Helen combined PSHE with Religious Education for her teaching course as, she believes, the moral values promoted are very similar. This passion is shown with Helen's additional activities, which include working with charities and other agencies to help students study racism, traffic-calming, cancer and inter-generational activity. An example of this is a No Smoking Day run every year across the college raising awareness with stickers, badges, T-shirts and quizzes.

Helen has found the ethos at Chalfonts Community College to be inspiring. She explains: "Since joining the Chalfonts, I have found that students both challenge me and inspire me on a daily basis. The staff have been nothing short of fantastic, so supportive and encouraging. There is a real 'can do' feel about the college, with many talented members of staff challenging and inspiring each other. Education for me is not about the limited time students are at school, it is about equipping them with the life skills, self-esteem and awareness of others that is essential to students achieving personal successes throughout their whole lives."

THIS part of the country has many beautiful places that we can enjoy and just beyond our boundaries is historic Langley Park in Wexham, for which Buckinghamshire County Council has achieved a major Heritage Lottery Fund. The award of just under 2 million will provide a major boost for the Park as part of a 3 million project to restore rare and historic features, including the extensive rhododendron garden, the Lancelot 'Capability' Brown designed lake and to provide better pathways, improved facilities and more information for visitors.

Owned by Buckinghamshire County Council, Langley Park is one of the oldest parks in Buckinghamshire, dating as far back as the 13th Century. A large area of the Park is operated by the Council as a country park, including the popular rhododendron garden set around a stunning viewpoint towards Windsor Castle some 5 miles away. The Park is full of historic features, including many magnificent old trees that provide a stronghold for rare insect wildlife.

Langley Park was acquired by the County Council in 1945 under the powers of the Green Belt Act 1938. It extends to around 190 hectares, including 53 hectares managed by the County Council as Langley Park Country Park. The remaining area is let to agricultural tenants, with public access via pathways and trails. The 18th Century Mansion, outbuildings and surrounding gardens are privately owned, but the Mansion is prominent in views from all round the Park.

It originated as a Royal hunting park, an outlier to Windsor and was later owned by the Dukes of Marlborough. The Park's landscape was redeveloped in the 18th Century by Lancelot 'Capability' Brown concurrently with his work at Blenheim Palace. One of its most popular features is an extensive early 20th Century rhododendron garden, regarded by specialists as a significant 'period piece' example of its kind. A particular feature of the park is its extensive collection of 'veteran' parkland trees, which provide habitat for a range of rare beetles and Langley Park is ranked as third most important site in Britain for this group of insects.

The award comes as the result of an extensive programme of surveys and research into the Park's history, on-going consultations into what local residents and visitors need to help them access and enjoy the Park, and a considerable amount of support and assistance from local volunteers and partner organisations. Much of this work was funded through an earlier project development grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund.

The proposed 3 million project, scheduled to run between 2008 and 2012, will improve features like the rhododendron garden, the Brownian lake and the Arboretum. The main visitor entrance and car park will be improved, including construction of a new building to provide upgraded public toilets, a refreshment kiosk and office/workshop for park maintenance staff and rangers. Paths will be improved around the park, including new surfacing in key areas to enable access by visitors with special needs. A range of new information will also be provided and public events organised during the project.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE'S ROADS - Following their experiences with last year's exceptionally bad winter, Buckinghamshire County Council carried out a thorough review of the way in which dangerous potholes are repaired. As a result there are now more contractor gangs fixing potholes and they are using hot 'tarmac', which ensures a higher quality, first time permanent repair. This is already proving to be far more effective than the methods previously used, although Council contractors are still working through a large backlog of work.

The prolonged rainfall during the winter caused many roads to suffer badly, with the top layer of tarmac stripping off in many locations. Rural roads in particular have been affected in this way and in addition to pothole repairs our contractors have been carrying out more substantial structural patching repair work during recent weeks as well to arrest the deterioration. Unlike pothole repairs, this method of repair is designed to deal with much larger surface defects where normal pothole repairs would not be technically feasible or cost effective. This work involves replacing the top layers of the road over quite large areas with tarmac designed to withstand most weather and traffic conditions. The finished product produces a cost effective, long lasting repair that will keep road surfaces safe and serviceable for a number of years.

Whole scale re-surfacing programmes, although desirable, are costly and have to be prioritised over the entire county. More local pothole repairs and structural patching is inevitable in the year ahead rather than re-surfacing. The budgets for road repairs are under increasing pressure mainly due to inflationary increases in energy and contractors costs. Limited government central funding has not kept pace with these increases, which means that expenditure on road maintenance in real terms has remained static.

A and B roads are inspected once a month, C roads every 3 months and unclassified roads every 6 months

The council aims to repair defects within the following timescale; . Category 1 defects identified by its highway inspectors - within 24 hours . Category 1 defects identified by other means including reports via Highways On Call - by the end of the following day. . Category 2 potholes (up to 1 squared metre) - in 28 days . Structural patching work - An order will be placed with the council's to be done as soon as possible. In the meantime, the road will be maintained to ensure that no danger is posed to road users

Cabinet Member for Transportation Val Letheren says "We do have limited budgets and we have to assess and prioritise works across a wide area to maximise the use of our available resources. Our task of prioritising work has been made even more difficult this year by the effects of last winter, but we do strive to keep road surfaces safe and serviceable to minimise the risk of damage to car tyres and wheels. However a backlog of work did build up during the winter and some repairs have taken longer to complete than would have been the case normally. Please keep us informed by calling Highways On Call on 0845 230 2882 or by email HOC@buckscc.gov.
